FREW & CAMPBELL PUBLISHESS AND PROPERTORS.

FRIDAY, NOV. 2, 1877.

A WASHINGTON correspondent reports Senator Bayard, of Delaware, as saying that the subserviency of Western public men in their desire to secure power, lies at the root of present financial heresies. That instead of attempting to instruct the people on such a subject as finance, they rather appear to cater to their fol-lies, and use their ignorance as a means of exciting their passions so as to gain power for themselves.

THE past six months has larrely added to Kentucky's reputation as a State in which brutal crimes and general lawlessnes are especially numerous and ram the mercy of bands of masked ruffians, who go about whipping, maining, and even killing inoffensive persons who have in some way become obnoxious to them, while murders growing out of family and neighborhood quarrels are alarmingly frequent. The Louisville Courier Journal devotes a leading editorial in a recent issue to this crying disgrace, and calls and force its suppression. The Courier Journal attributes this startling frequency of murders and deadly assaults to the prevalent habit of carrying concealed weapons. The majority of the men thus armed are whisky-drinkers, and a drunk en man with a pistol is as likely to kill a peaceful stranger as a known foe. Is is encouraging to note that in some quarters public sentiment is waking up to the enormity of the evil and to the necessity of suppessing it with an iron hand.

John H. Athirson in the Hancock Count

How John H. Attress to the Hanceck County Independent.

I notice in the daily papers the death of the Hon. Daniel Polstey, of Point Pleasart, W. Va., upon the 12th of this month. The deceased was long a resident of Weilsburg, and was known as the editor of the Western Transcript, and as a lawyer of considerable ability.

During the stormy days of 1802, when Virginians who were opposed to secession were earnestly discussing the best means for unintaining the Union, a mass convention assembled in the month of May, at Wheeling, and many of our citizens well remember the utter failure of our prominent political leaders to point out the path of duty and safety.

After a number of speeches had been made, some favoring the formation of a new State instanter; while others, more cautious, pointed out the danger of treason to the State of Virginia, upon the one hand, as well as treason to the General Government upon the other, leaving the audience at sea as to say practical measures, when recess was taken until 20-clock P. N.

During the recess the delegates of the several counties were separately conven-ed to discuss the dangers of the hour. Hancock county was largely represented, and after some discussion a series of res-olutions were adopted, declaring the docolutions were adopted, declaring the doctrine, that all offices would become vacanish, where the incembent should go into secession, and recommending, that in the event of the ordinance of secession, being declared ratified by a vote, that the people of the counties here represented and all others disposed to co-operate with us, should appoint upon the — day of June, 1801, delegates to a General Convention to meet on the — day of Inat month at such place as may be designated by an Executive Committee to be appointed at this meeting, to devise such measures and take such action as the safety and welfare of the people may demand.

Life Among Our Tuscarawing (Ohto) Neighbors.

Nevcomentawn Leiter in the Steutawille Gastie.

These melancholy days are indeed the sad ones to people who lire here. The season when maintail poison is thickest in the air is antumn; and now we take quinine for breakfast, tunch and tea. If, by chance we get hungry between times, we fall back on it for a "piece." The diet costs us one cent per grain, and we usually make a meal on five grains. Thus you see newspaper men cah here live within their means. Then we have a novel mode of preparing this food, of which many of your readers may never have heard. To avoid the exceedingly bitter tasts of the drug which remains so long after once imparted, we have little round flour waters made about the size and thickness of a demosetized hall-doilar, and in this we neatly wrap the dose and swallow it like an cel. Not only those who are actually suffering with fever and sque dines or regularly on this medicine, but very many use it as a prevent to the progression of the village; but the natives are content to suffer its pangs so long as they can enjoy the absence of typholid ever and diseases of that type. You would be told that it was all a joke if you came here and inquired if there was any ague. I was told this, and after a few-sever chills and a loss of ten pounds in fieth I was reminded that that was a mere joke also. But truly the reports that go out from here are very much exaggerated; it is not nearly so bad as many residing away from here believe it to be A certain gentleman of your city named Creasey (formerly of Wheeling) once paid this place an unavoidable business a visit and acted under the strange influence of these magnified reports. restding away from here believe it to be. A certain gentleman of your city named Creasey (formerly of Wheeling) once paid this place an unavoidable business visit and acted under the strange influence of these magnified reports. With fear and trembling he jumped off the train and ran at his utimost speed to the quarter where his business lay. That done, he ran back to the depot in like manner, and departed at the first opportunity. I never afterwards learned whether he had a chill or not. If he did, it was the result of his overheating on this occasion.

If we have a City Marshal we only know it from the fact that one was elected and there has been no death or resignation since. The live stock that roams about the city, opening gates and destroying pretty lawns, unmolested, would indicate that our marshal is not attending to his business. There is a certain hog, a big fellow and a boss rooter, that can be found at any time in Capt. Walder's lot at the head of Logan street. It makes its way in by opening the gate with its rooter, and when in it gives its undivided attention to the destruction of sod. As

Mrs. Hayes has won the admiration of the people wherever she has been in the recent tours of the President. She is the most popular member of the Cabinet. Though she has two grown sons, and has the noble bearing of a matron, the years have passed over her head so lightly that there are few deep traces left. In manterial productions of the product of the produ there are few deep traces left. In man-ners, conversation, and dress there is a charming simplicity about her. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes both seemed blezsed with good health and spirits, and, in addition arcsensible enough, it would appear, to be willing to see and enjoy the sunny side of

Henry Wilson And Anna Dickin-

Two or three extracts from current literature have recently appeared in your paper, in which the authors have labored to stignatize the system of religious being he talent for scolding—I never heard her scolding talent disputed. The superbletant world, and revive some of the old calumnies against one of the most distill receive the stands of the second of the calumpies against one of that system. It may not be amiss to place alongside of these partians denanciations the calm judgments of men recognized as competent authorities on such subjects.

Hon. Geo. Bancroft says (Miscellanies, p. 406,): Anna Dickinson is published as hav man. I've come to the conclusion that on a magnificent scale they rather like it else why do they march upon Anna and beg her to soold them for life at the rate of "seventy or so a year?" Henry Wilson after he became Vice-President, called on me one day in deep perturbation of spirit, and told me that "Anna Dickinson had been recommended to him as a wife," and asked my opinion on the subject.

The possibility of her not accepting if easked, had not even dawned upon the id gentleman's mind.
"Anna is attractive," he went on; "but

'm afraid there's too much of her. She'd keep on wanting a career of her own, wouldn't she?" That would put a public man in an unpleasant position; don't you "I think," I said, that if you ever re
